The text in this specimen was taken from the book Fair Lawn: Know Your Town as published by the League of Women Voters.

IN THE BEGINNING: No historic account of Fair Lawn would be complete without recognition of the LENNI-LENAPI (ORIGINAL PEOPLE), native tribes of northern New Jersey. Their trails, campsites, rock shelters and hunting grounds became the roads and towns we use today. When the first Dutch settlers made their way up to what we know as the Hackensack and Passaic Rivers, it was to establish fur trading posts with the HACKINGHAESKAY INDIANS, one of the tribes of the Lenni-Lenapi. The great chief of the tribes was Oratam. As settlements grew, the Lenni-Lenapi were forced further west to unsettled land. Few of us realize how many such names are still with us, for example: PASSAIC (EITHER WHERE THE RIVER GOES OVER THE FALLS OR VALLEY), PARAMUS (FINE STREAM OR PLACE

OF WILD TURKEYS). WAGARAW (CROOKEDPLACE OR RIVER BEND). Typically, River Road, one of the oldest roads in the eastern part of our country, was once an Indian trail, leading to the GREAT ROCK tribal council site in Glen Rock. The most interesting Indian relic in Fair Lawn is the fish trap (WEIR) in the Passaic River. It can be seen during low water 200 yard upstream from the Fair Lawn Avenue bridge. The trap consists of two rows of stones forming a V-shaped dam into which the Indians drove the fish during migration, closing the opening at the point of the V with weighted nets. The Dutch called this the SLOTENDAM or SLOTER-DAM from the verb sluiten, SHUT.

This gave rise to the name of SLOOTERDAM (also spelled Sloterdam) which was used to describe the surrounding area. Fair Lawn was known as Slooterdam as late as 1791, and River Road was called the SLAUTERDAM ROAD until after the Civil War. Life in the area was rigorous but settlers prospered. Farms were fruitful, fish and game were abundant. Suprisingly, slavery was encouraged by the early proprietors. A bonus of land was granted the freeholders for every slave brought into the colony. Slaves worked the farms and cut the sandstone that went into building the farmhouses. By 1790, BERGEN COUNTY has approximately 2,300 slaves. Early Houses:

or “DARK CORNER” in old Dutch) is the Naugle House, built in the 18th century by Jacob Vanderbeck’s son-in-law, a paymaster to General Lafayette’s troops. Lafayette stayed in this house for several days in 1824 when he returned to this country after the Revolutionary War. Another old structure is on Fair Lawn Avenue, east of Plaza Road. It is known as the DUTCH HOUSE and has been a restaurant or tavern since 1929. The sandstone construction is typical of the early Flemish Colonial style. No early ownership has been estabmany as 18 slaves. Another structure, almost as old, was built by Jacob Vander-beck. It is located off Fair Lawn Avenue (formerly Dunkerhook Road) east of Saddle River Road. The west wing, the original structure, had five rooms and the unfinished second floor was used for the children and slaves’ quarters. General Lafayette is said to have visited the local militia headquarters here during the Revolution. The east wing of the house was built in the 20th century. Nearby, on Dunkerhook Road (“DONCKERHOEK”

Probably the oldest structure standing in Fair Lawn is the GARRESTON-ROCKER HOME, now known as the GARRESTON FORGE AND FARM Restoration, on River Road, south of Morlot Avenue. The west wing, the kitchen, was the original building built some time between 1708-1730. The main wing was built before 1800 but the gambrel roof, dormer-and porch were added in 1903. The property, known at its purchase in 1719 as the Sloterdam Patent, was originally a huge plantation stretching between the PASSAIC and SADDLE RIVERS. The GARRESTON HOUSEHOLD had as
